EAGL 2022 Honors

Week 10

Deja Chambliss
Gymnast of the Week

Kendall Whitman
Specialist of the Week

Julia Knower
Lauren Keener
Co-Rookies of the Week

Gymnast of the Week - Graduate Student Deja Chambliss (Chesterfield, Va.) from George Washington was voted EAGL Gymnast of the Week on March 16. Chambliss matched her career-high on floor for the second time this season at Maryland on Sunday with a 9.925, good enough for second place on the event. She also tied for first overall on vault in both meets this weekend and finished second in the all-around on Sunday.

Specialist of the Week - Sophomore Kendall Whitman (Pottstown, Pa.) from George Washington was voted EAGL Specialist of the Week on March 16. Whitman tied for first overall on vault in Sunday's quad meet at Maryland. She also earned a career-high 9.875 on beam on Sunday, helping George Washington to its season-high score. The sophomore posted her fourth 9.900+ of the season on floor at Towson on Friday to finish second overall.

Co-Rookies of the Week - Freshman Julia Knower (Mandeville, La.) from North Carolina and freshman Lauren Keener (Apex, N.C.) from Towson were voted EAGL Co-Rookies of the Week on March 16. Knower earned her third straight all around title, setting a new career-best of 39.400. She matched her career-bests on floor, beam and bars. The freshman finished the regular season tied as the No. 1 all rounder in the EAGL. Keener hit a career-best 9.900 on bars Friday night, landing in a four-way tie for third place in a deep field. She scored a 9.875 on beam, securing a tie for first place and matching her career best. The freshman's beam finish was her first career first-place finish in any event as a Tiger.
